ISA Guest Speaker Abstract

Hector Barresi "Wireless Transmitters"

Wireless transmitters can measure and communicate process variables on-line without the need for wiring or external power. These transmitters give industrial users the flexibility to gather information about process and assets in areas where traditional hard-wired transmitters are too costly, difficult or time-consuming to implement. These devices can accurately monitor pressure, temperature, ultrasonic noise (for detecting steam and gas leaks), and include an analog interface to convert analog signals into wireless.

Costs and benefits related to installation, information gathering and exchange, maintenance and operations, and safety will be included. Attendees will leave with the information and tools they need to make confident and appropriate decisions about the use of wireless transmitters at their facilities. They will also understand the role these devices may play in the future.

Hector Barresi is "Product Manager for Industrial Wireless Technologies" with Honeywell Industrial Measurement and Control - Phoenix AZ. After his graduation, Mr. Barresi began his professional career, in 1980, in Industrial Automation and Control. Since he joined Honeywell in 1989 he has occupied several functions in the areas of Sales and Marketing, in four different countries. Since his move to the USA in 1997, Mr. Barresi has also occupied the positions of "Worldwide Applications Manager" and "International Sales Manager" for Latin America, Europe and Asia. Hector Barresi studied robotics at CAECE University in Buenos Aires, Argentina, and earned Bachelor's Degree in Electrical Engineering from Argentina's National Technology University. He has a Master's degree in Business Administration from France's Jules Verne University. Mr. Barresi is fluent in French, Italian, Spanish and Portuguese.

President's Message

I hope you all had a terrific summer and now that Fall is approaching we can look forward to an exciting year for our ISA section. I am looking forward to leading our Section and working with a high performance executive team. Many of the executive members have a lot of experience and some are past section presidents. We also have some new executive members in Jeff Talbot, Greg Moon and Ken Armitage and new positions for some existing executives, Mike Grey, Kalpen Vachharajani, Jim Knight and Dipak Patki. We also have some openings to fill so please contact me if you are interested in helping to run your section.

The next ISA Show will be in February 2005. Don Mitchell is the show chairman and he has a strong committee to provide an excellent show.

I would like to encourage all of you to let your executive know what you would like from your section and society. We want you to be satisfied that you are getting value for your membership in ISA. There are a number of ISA recorded seminars available and we could arrange to present them as a member benefit. The society web site at www.isa.org has free technical papers that you can download and email discussion groups that you can participate in. Our section website at www.isasarnia.com has an archive of past announciators and articles that you can view.

There are a number of interesting topics scheduled for the upcoming Section dinner meetings. Please come out to enjoy a good meal and meet your executive, network with other members and learn about Wireless Transmitters, Variable Frequency Drives, Viscosity Measurement and more. The meals are subsidized by the section so this is another potential member benefit.

Take care,

Brian Smith
